● A so called "expert" writes: "Unlike most penny ha' penny pop tunes, this is actually a profoundly religious song: 'If there is no mercy left in the world, the doors of heaven will never be barred,' sings Ofra Haza. 'The creator reigns supreme,' she informs us, 'and is higher than the angels,' and goes on to argue: 'By his nearness, His life-giving breath flows through them and they glory of His name'. Furthermore, in the second verse she proposes: 'The wheel in its circle thunders acclaiming His Holy name. Clothed in the glory of His radiance, the six-winged cherubs surround Him, whirling in His honour.' Er, that's about it. Thank you." (You're tired - Ed.)
